RE/MAX Palos Verdes Realty
Presidential Appointment

I have been a Realtor since purchase offers consisted of one page deposit receipts. How long ago was that? Well, my youngest daughter, Rachel, was 2 1/2 at the time and now, she is my business partner at RE/MAX Palos Verdes Realty. The road to my current position started at Tarkington Realty, went to Carriage Realty, then to Coldwell Banker and finally in 1989, to RE/MAX Palos Verdes Realty.

I started my real estate career because, at the time, my husband was an undercover drug enforcement officer for the LAPD. I was terrified that if anything happened to him in his dangerous job, I wouldn't be able to support my three children. So, I marshaled my experiences as a pre-school director, Japanese interpreter and art business owner towards my new career in real estate. My pre-school background taught me how to "use my words, not my fists" to arbitrate during one of the largest financial commitments in my clients' lives. My experience as an interpreter taught me to see situations from a different cultural perspective and how, it's the little things, like unique closing gifts that often create future referrals.

In 1988, I assisted with the development of that famous, first Palos Verdes Board Of Realtors cookbook, WHAT'S COOKIN' IN PALOS VERDES, which was a fundraiser at the time. My experience as an artist contributed to the cover illustration-The Malaga Cove Neptune Statue wearing a Kiss The Cook apron and holding a spatula. Copies of this compilation of what is now considered to be politically incorrect, unhealthy recipes can still be found at the PV Library used book sales.

Since my daughter, Rachel is the Chairman of the Childrens' Miracle Network for RE/MAX Palos Verdes Realty and Execs, I have also chosen to contribute to this worthwhile organization. Of course, I also did the "parenthood circuit" as a Girl Scout Leader, Little League Coach and PTA Board Member. I was also a member of the Palos Verdes Art Association Advisory Board and Palateers painting group.

Professionally, I have an E-Pro and QSC designation as well as being a member of the RE/MAX Hall Of Fame. I look forward to participating in the future of the Palos Verdes Board Of Realtors and hope my straightforward approach will be an asset to future advisory decisions.
